Dear Sir:

This is just a note to let you know how much your publication is appreciated by this addressee.

Everything is going well over here in Italy except that the flies are clogging the airplanes. They will probably have to start working them into the traffic pattern soon.

Please change your mailing list to reflect my present address which appears in the heading of this letter so that I can get the news of my acquaintances and your inspirational articles sooner.

Let me say again that at the present time anyway you are doing at least more than my regiment and probably more than some others in the way of service.

Yours truly,
V. M. Cawthon
